

MAJOR D-STAR

Born in Detroit, Michigan and residing in Florida, Major D-Star is an all American "Hip-Hoppa" reaching peaks very early in his career. Since the tender age of six Major was introduced to and heavily influenced by the likes of platinum artists Ludacris, Biggie, and Jay-Z. Such interests turned into a fascination that sparked admiration for music, especially genres heavily inspired by life, art, and rhythm and blues.

Blessed with a supportive family, Major received his first microphone, headphones, and interface from his parents. Investing in Major's music was a result of him remembering academic precedence by maintaining good grades while pursuing his music career. Major's motivation, passion, and hard work convinced his family his music is more than a hobby.

His love and admiration for music grew into creative artistry beyond the microphone and into the sound itself. Having the opportunity to grow up with local producers, Major learned first hand the mixing of life experiences and personal stories into his music. It took some time but with determination and persistence, Major recorded his first CD when he was in 8th grade.

Relocating to Miami proved to be very opportune for Major and his career. Major instantly started networking with local promoters, DJs, and big-name artists. With the large mixture of diverse people located in Miami, Major was exposed to better opportunities for his music career.

Major's breakthrough came from Miami promoter Carlos Saavedra when releasing his debut mixtape 'I'm So Major'. Through Carlos, Major connected with artists such as Jowell & Randy, performed on some of Miami's hottest nightclub stages, from Karu & Y, Club Space, to Nocturnal.

Major created an instant buzz that opened up opportunities for Major. He has opened for Rapper Wiz Khalifa, performed with Twista, Mystikal, and Big Sean. Major's debut mixtape 'I'm So Major' received heavy praise from several hip-hop sites, and in early 2011, his mixtape was rated #1 on Facebook. He continued to grow musically. In 2015 he released his 'I'm So Major 2' hosted by the world famous DJ Smallz and Slim Dunkin (RIP). The mixtape had over 165,000 views and downloads on live mixtapes his singles 'Rather Be' and 'Dreams of Being Rich' together gained over 428,000 listens/views and over 60k streams on Spotify.

He received sponsorships from companies like 'Pelle Pelle', Donna sacs, and Ink Detroit. He has also started his own group 'First Flight Entertainment' along with his label 'Driven Musik Records.' Along with accolades from his hometown of Detroit through Reverb Nation Artist of the year.

He's currently working on his next album entitled 'Trap Star' with his single 'Solo' which gained traction quickly on World Star HipHop along with 'Motown Sound and Dream Come True/Messing with A freak.'

It is indeed a new day in Detroit hip hop. Eminem introduced the world to Detroit hip hop, well over a decade ago. Two years ago, Big Sean began his run, which has not slowed down in the years since then. There are also many other Detroit rappers breaking into the mainstream, including Major D-Star.

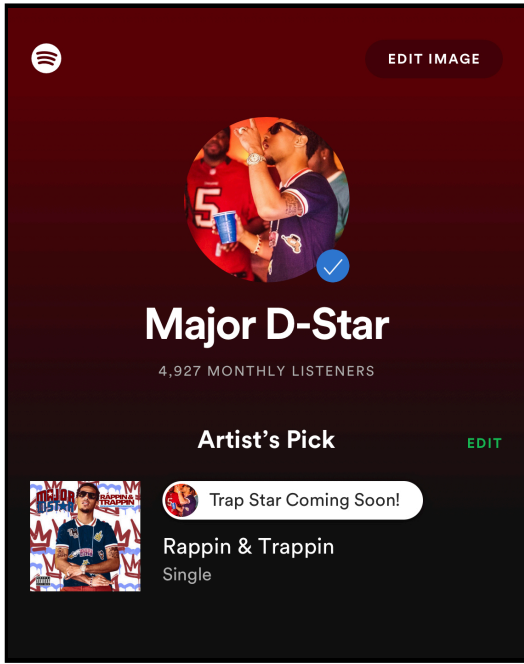

Atlanta is the hub for artists in music of all genres. Following an extended hiatus, this is again the case for hip hop and Atlanta. There is a lot of new energy in Detroit, much of which is credited to Big Sean. However, there are other artists making major moves, Major D-Star is among these names.
